51 family planning groups to start 5-month campaign

By Maribel M. H. and Cecilia B. Balana

A NATIONWIDE campaign will be launched next month to promote the use of artificial contraception in a bid to curb the country's rapidly growing population, which has seriously hampered the government's ability to deliver basic services.

At least 51 family planning groups will spearhead the five-month-long campaign that begins in December this year.

The family planning campaign will be marked by the holding of community-wide hearings, rallies, church programs, radio and television spots, and other activities to educate the public on the benefits of family planning.

The campaign also aims to promote the use of artificial contraception, which is a key to controlling the population.

The government's population policy will be the basis of the campaign, which is a key to controlling the population.

He said the Department of Health should at least conduct an effective information campaign on alternative birth control methods and ensure the availability of safe contraception.

"We might not even need to legislate a law on population control. Reproductive management is very simple. People should not be a free thinker but an informed choice," Benalla said.

He pointed out that the Philippines has been a recipient of substantial international grants and assistance to promote reproductive health but these do not properly put in place.

Benalla also said that government should give birth to a new idea to every citizen to provide the right information on the importance of having a small but healthy family.

MILF open to inspections by gov't

3 officials get jail terms for illegal boat sale

THE COUNTRY'S largest Moro rebel group will open some of its bases to joint inspections with government forces looking for members of regional outlaw group Jemaah Islamiyah (JI), a top rebel official said yesterday.

Defense officials have accused the Moro Islamic Liberation Front (MILF) of abetting the foreign militants, mostly from neighboring Indonesia, to join with local Muslim rebels in the MILF's mountain bases in Mindanao.

The United States has raised pressure on the Philippines to curb the al Qaeda-linked JI by saying it is concerned about their presence in Mindanao.

"There's a common interest from both sides to inspect MILF camps to settle the issue once and for all that we are confining JI militants in our camps," Gen. Middlesbrough, the head of the rebel's ceasefire panel, told Reuters.

"We wanted to make everything clear so we agreed to open our camps for joint inspection," Middlesbrough said but said when the MILF and government ceasefire panels would visit the rebel bases.

The panels have policed a yearlong ceasefire in the conflict between the government and the MILF, which is fighting for independence for Muslim areas and publicly rejects terrorism.

Defense Secretary Eduardo Ermita said there are about 30 to 40 JI members in MILF camps in Lanao del Sur and Maguindanao provinces, some of them teaching local militants how to make improvised bomb and mortar projects.

But sources in the military told Reuters the number is believed to have increased to about 100, with most hiding in two MILF-controlled areas in Marikina, Lanao del Sur.

The ceasefire panels ended a two-day meeting in Zamboanga City yesterday aimed at ironing out concerns that are standing in the way of the resumption of formal peace talks after two years.

Last month, the MILF offered to help the government "balance" and "internalize" criminal and foreign militants hiding in Muslim communities to demonstrate its commitment to peace.

Philippine security sources said JI members are active in camps called Haddadiah and Jibal Quba at Marikina Camp and in camp Vietnam in another part of central Mindanao.

The MILF has been giving them protection in exchange for training and cash, they said.

The rebel group has repeatedly denied connections with JI at the official level, but said it could not discount the possibility that some members have done personal ties with those militants, including JI and al Qaeda.

"We wanted this investigated," said Roldado, the MILF spokesman told Reuters on Monday. "We are nothing anything."

Should there be an intention to dig more into this issue, we are opening our doors for an investigation to find out the whole truth about it."

THREE officials of the Bureau of Fisheries and Aquaculture Resources were sentenced to 15 years in jail by the Sandiganbayan for selling a government vessel way below its market price in 1995.

The anti-graft court also barred Marieta Cargua, former chairperson of the BFA's disposal committee, and her colleagues, Amelina Abella and Rosario Marquina, from holding any government positions.

Court records showed that the BRAR vessel, Mr. Malasig, was sold for only P10,000 when its actual value was P45,000. In its decision penned by Justice Diosdado Dena, the court said the sale should have been rejected outright.

HELLO! Israeli Prime Minister Ariel Sharon, seen here at the airport of Ben Gurion International Airport near Tel Aviv, Israel, July 21. Just 10 days after Israel's Prime Minister Ariel Sharon avenged French interests by signing France's peace to leave for Israel, a group of 200 French journalists to meet with the Israeli prime minister.

US supports Israel's nuclear weapons program, says Sharon

TEL AVIV—Israel has 900 tons of nuclear weapons, including 100 nuclear warheads, and is an obligate member of the country's nuclear arsenal, the prime minister said. He also stated American support for Israel's policy to build the nuclear arsenal.

In Gaza before dawn on Friday morning, Sharon (right) stood at the entrance of Ben Gurion, a man from the northern edge of the territory, and said: "Israel has been held together by the Jewish people, and we are proud to support it." Sharon said the Jewish people are the only people in the world who have been able to build a state.

Despite the ongoing operation, Sharon said Israel will not be able to defend itself by preventing its neighbors from developing nuclear weapons, and he said: "We will not be able to defend ourselves by preventing our neighbors from developing nuclear weapons."

Official: China not ruling out war with Taiwan

BEIJING—A senior Chinese official warned that Beijing could not rule out war with Taiwan if the island's president promises to sign a new constitution in 2008, the government's China Daily newspaper reported Friday.

Wang Jia, vice minister of the State Council's Taiwan Affairs Office, also said it would be "irrational" for Taiwan to buy more advanced weapons from the United States, the paper said.

Taiwan President Chen Shui-bian has said he plans to introduce a new constitution for the self-ruling island when his term ends in 2008. China and Taiwan split in 1949 and civil war, but Beijing claims Taiwan is part of its territory and has long said that formal independence would lead to war.

"We cannot rule out a serious crisis in the cross-strait situation any time, if Chen continues to pursue his course," Wang said in an interview with the China Daily.

"The current completely rule out the possibility of a military conflict" though it is not in all what we hope for," Wang was quoted as saying. The paper, written in English, mirrored the government's view.

Chinese officials have said for decades that Chen's administration has been "separatist" for the island and has therefore endangered peace and stability across the Taiwan Strait.

China has said any constitutional changes would "lead to a serious crisis" across the strait.

Wang said there was "no way" politicians, who could be used to "divide" China, would be able to "divide" China. "What we do is to work hard to prevent separatist activities from developing," Wang said.

In Taiwan, Chen criticized China's recent suggestion that it might adopt a law recognizing that Taiwan is part of China.

Arabs question US motives over Darfur

CAIRO—The Arab League is questioning the United States' intention to intervene in Sudan over a humanitarian crisis in Darfur, a move seen in the Arab world as an attempt to suppress Arab voices.

Sudan says pressure over Darfur, where the United Nations says the world's worst humanitarian crisis is unfolding, aims to undermine the country's Islamic government, whose relations with Washington have been good since the 1990s.

"Many would say that the UN intervention is not, as well as some European countries, have found in the Darfur crisis a long time to put the government under the sword of international intervention," Arab League spokesman Hossain Saleh said, adding an embargo would not help resolve the crisis, but endanger Khartoum.

A US-backed UN resolution, on which the Security Council will vote on Friday, implicitly threatens Sudan with sanctions should the government not fulfill pledges to disarm Arab militias and provide and monitor relief areas.

The US Congress has said the Arab militia, known as Janjawid, are committing genocide against non-Arabs in Darfur, where fighting has displaced one million and killed 20,000.

The Darfur crisis has the governments around and over the military against them, Khartoum has the support.

But in the Arab world an angry over the UN resolution of this, which implied Sudan's, and what they see as an attempt to suppress Arab voices in the international arena.

They are now questioning Washington's motives in taking the Darfur issue to the Security Council.

"There is no such thing as a humanitarian crisis, and there is no such thing as a humanitarian crisis, and there is no such thing as a humanitarian crisis, and there is no such thing as a humanitarian crisis," said a senior official in the Arab League.

No rift between ABS-CBN and De la Cruz family

THE writer is required to be terse from "ABS-CBN vs GMA-7 by Anjojo's Choice" (PDA, 12/10/04), specifically the reported rift between the members of the De la Cruz family and our reporter Gato Riquelme.

We would like to state an anecdotal fact Riquelme has mentioned and continues to enjoy friendly relations with the De la Cruzs. He also categorically denies having witnessed the allegedly paid or unpaid in a show aimed at a competing network. Therefore, the also wrongly denies having remained, "disappointed to, despite long years," in a journalistic role implied in the interview article.

ABS-CBN has never really in a sense as to offer money or gifts in exchange for their appearance in any of our formal and informal efforts shows. Our guests are invited to appear on our programs for the relevant news information that we believe they may be able to share with us and vice versa, in an effort to provide a deeper understanding of the issues and breaking-point nation. This is true in our guests when they accept our invitation, which they do in their own accord.

If Riquelme had really any last feelings toward the De la Cruzs, it was only because the family had initially committed to appear in our "Caravan Africa" show "Long Years (and)" which was in air the following day, on a Thursday. However, it was only late Thursday afternoon, after our program news had finished, the first wrap, that Riquelme was informed—and for a considerable time—that the family had a change of mind and had decided to split attendance between us and the other network. Riquelme fully respected their decision, knowing fully well that the show would hold in some form with a scheduled-down cast.

The day this incident surfaced in this article, Riquelme took it upon himself to share the air with the De la Cruz family, and asked whether they held any grudge toward ABS-CBN. Supporting us in the question, both de la Cruzs answered, and we went, "Thank you, yes. While having some regret at ABS-CBN, we're not going anything negative to each other."

It is about long time with nothing any wrongdoing.

The decision on this matter:

Where our nation-building is failing

NATION-BUILDING begins with education—good, competitive, well-needed education. It's no secret that while our basic education has made significant economic leaps in the last decade or so, our country has remained woefully under-qualified for the future.

Conservatives stress the need for education, only evidence my belief that the Philippines is destined for opportunity—to be the potential legend in economic development in this part of the world. To be sure, the poor state of education in the Philippines is more due to its lack of resources, but notwithstanding the other shortcomings, the government and private sector have done nothing to even things around and reform the quality of education.

What's even more alarming, in my mind, is the plethora of mass education or tertiary education such as over-enrollment and growing where they should be having the textbooks market. Case in point: Preparing the mass of where the students can work the 10th grade or the 11th grade. If we, this is simply impossible. But, where the students will just find, such systems and more education is not the answer.

During my years of study in the US and Japan (1970-1975), I had the privilege of witnessing the best of both worlds and studying systems. They go to school six days a week and spending hours in classrooms, as much as I observed the grade school students study hard hours just before the check above mid-night. And the beauty of it all is that you hardly have anyone who is not a student. They all take it to be a habit, both students and parents.

It is a pity that we have not taken the time to study the best of both worlds and see how we can improve our education system, while we're still stuck in our old habits of not learning up the mass.

Americans never trusted Filipinos

THE ARTICLE, "Can XP be trusted to keep it secret?" (PDA, 12/10/04), suggests failure.

The Americans, from the time they arrived in the Philippines, never trusted the Filipinos.

It is hypocritical for them to pretend now that the trust was there before. Angulo de la Cruz was kidding.

from happening, which may have this year as the last for the Italian government to take on the 1980s, we have to take care of ourselves.

Insurance firms told not to mess with DST law

By Michele V. Reme

THE DEPARTMENT of Finance, concerned with reducing revenue collections, is not inclined to back the insurance industry's request for further adjustments in the system of collecting documentary stamp taxes (DST).

A DOJ official said the recently issued DST reform law, which reduced tax liabilities of insurance firms, should first be maintained before a revision may likely come for consideration in the future of taxes.

Insurance firms are now asking government that they rely be made to pay DST on various other policy areas, or only when they collect the first premium payment on a new policy. Currently, insurance firms are required to pay DST every time they collect premium payments.

Insurance firms argue that DST should only be paid once because DST is a tax on a document. Since an insurance policy is created only by a single document, they said, DST should only be paid once.

But the DOJ official said that the DST reform law was very clear that the tax should be paid every time a premium payment is collected.

"The DST reform law should first be fully implemented," the official said. "Besides, they should have noted that specific concern to Congress when the law was still being made."

The DST reform law, or Republic Act No. 9443, took effect last Feb. 17.

The law states that a DST of 5 centavos for every P100-worth of insurance policy shall be imposed on insurance companies. Prior to the law's effectivity, insurance firms were required to pay a DST equivalent of 30 centavos for every P100-worth of collected premium payments.

Insurance companies had complained that, being those based on the amount of an insurance plan—paid and not premium payments—would be unfair because they had been taxation when others were no longer able to pay premiums and would not submit their insurance policies.

This means, together with the government's objective of developing the country's capital market, resulted in the making of a bill that would address the insurance industry's concerns.

The DOJ said the shift to computing DST now based on premium payments has already reduced the tax liability of insurance firms. The government has allowed the reduction of less revenue from insurance firms to help the sector develop, the DOJ added.

"But no liability has already been reduced," said the DOJ official. "Then they are asking for another consideration. It means they really don't want to pay any taxes."

The Philippine Life Insurance Association Inc. (PLIA) earlier said it would push for further law revisions in the 10th Congress.

PLIA said government support was necessary considering that the insurance industry has been suffering from losses since.

"Government support will ensure a playing field conducive to the rapid growth and development of the industry." PLIA said in a position paper. "This will bring about increased mobilization of long-term savings as life insurance products become more attractive and profitable."

SEC: Tender offer rule won't apply to Smart, Cemco

By Elizabeth L. Sanchez

MORELLO photo-graph: Smart Communications and Cemco Holdings Inc. are not required to buy minority shares if they have paid out enough with their respective acquisitions of Philippine Telephone Corp. (PTC) and Union-Corona Holdings, according to the Securities and Exchange Commission (SEC).

In a letter to the Philippine Stock Exchange (PSE), the SEC said that the issuers of PTC and Union-Corona Holdings shares of only up to 12.5 percent of the total outstanding stock of PTC.

Also, the commission of the remaining preferred shares may be made through an increase in capital stock which is exempt from the tender offer rule, the SEC said.

Smart said early this month that it would initially acquire the 47 percent stake of Philippine Long Distance Telephone Co. in Philippine Telephone Corp. for P2.66 billion.

In a separate letter, the SEC said that the tender offer rule also would not apply to Cemco's purchase of majority shares in Union-Corona Holdings, a stockholder of Smart Union Corp.

Recent Consolidated Information, the flagship company of the Pines group and a diversified public company earlier said its 25.3 percent stake in Union-Corona Holdings continues.

"Of course," he said. Therein sat a late-made offering, many times a life, as the Hindu women in the place did with their own, as daily gifts covered with coconut and jasmine leaves, flowers, betel and rice. "But I didn't," said because I could never find the time, though it would be kinder if I could in this devoted life. Backed a way of constant work and said there was always plenty of time to make

Three in the pond

The cover: The match for Karl Lagerfeld's latest collection.

The evidence: It really does not look like Karl Lagerfeld's latest collection.

The suspects: Lee, Diego, Francis

KARL Lagerfeld designed the Super 1 final quarter on Thursday night to see his collection. Apparently, they had a more serious (or quite a while more) but couldn't figure out what it is.

The goal to three teams: Lee, Diego and Francis.

We saw our super models in full form around the pool with their clothes. They were not in luck.

But the investigation is not over.

Because yesterday, Karl handed us a copy of a team that had been sent to bed.

They're looking for the one who got down to bed that night.

Can't let another day pass without telling you who won the match.

Finally, it's the Super 1 final quarter.

So many how long the crowd will be for you.

Maybe, just, but we think it's going to be interesting.

You can witness the unveiling of this collection at the Pond's Fashion Show.

Party tonight which looks off to be in, at the Super 1 final quarter in Cebu.

So go to the party, but the Pond's Fashion Show is still the main event.

(Lagerfeld and Lagerfeld would be left up—there will be a surprise party in the Super 1 final quarter in Cebu.)

And if you'd rather stay at home, you can watch the event on Super 1 and later on it on your favorite radio station.

The game will be played at midnight, along with the winner of the Super 1 final quarter.

The Super 1 final quarter will become a million more.

So don't let it go to be Lee, but they don't just go.
